Abstract

- An operation of controlling the interactions which are offered by a user interface of a device on the basis of service features which are available for the device,
  - indicators being determined by the combination of service features,
- each interaction being assigned an indicator and a limiting value,
  - the interaction being offered if the indicator complies with the limiting value.